Behlen Completes Acquisition of EagleSpan

COLUMBUS, NEBRASKA – Behlen Mfg. Co. is pleased to announce the acquisition of the assets of EagleSpan Steel Structures, LLC of Loveland, Colorado. EagleSpan is a metal building manufacturer founded in 1996 by Jerry Curtis, which produces buildings ideally suited for equestrian and aviation applications. EagleSpan offers many unique features including folded web beam designs, architecturally pleasing curved roofs, and factory applied white primer/finish that creates clean, bright interiors.

Behlen is excited about the opportunity the EagleSpan product line offers to our builder network and is looking forward to serving EagleSpan customers. Behlen will move the manufacturing capabilities of EagleSpan to our Columbus location while keeping an engineering and sales presence in Colorado.

The Behlen Leadership Team and all Partners in Progress (Behlen employees) look forward to working with the EagleSpan product line. We believe this move will help position Behlen for the rebounding economy, provide new jobs for our Partners in Progress, and help us to become an even stronger presence in the metal building market.

Behlen Mfg. Co., located in Columbus, Nebraska, is locally owned and was established in 1936. The company's building division produces a wide variety of custom designed metal building systems designed for commercial, industrial, institutional, and warehouse buildings along with a complete metal roofing division.
